[-] GuluOne 3 points 26 minutes ago

Agreed.

Dennis is a very intelligent person and knows how to run a business. For example, his online posts attacking critics do a good job of suppressing criticism.

Over the past year, people have been repeatedly advising me to stop talking about SubEx because they were concerned about my SubEx page and other attempts by Dennis to target me. Also my old Reddit account, /u/gulugawa became synonymous with my real-life identity thanks to the harassment, which convinced me to take the mistaken step of deleting the account.

Dennis has serious problems resolving conflicts with other people and should not be running a business.

They are often recent immigrants or people living in India. They operate by spamming people with low-rate jobs and hoping someone responds so they can collect a commission. Most of them know almost nothing about programming or US geography.

- Posting sexual remarks that got him arrested.
- Discussing someone's suicide attempts.
- Constantly trying to make Wikipedia edits using throwaway IPs to make him and his company look better.

↓ Peoria Charter is their only significant competition, and they do not currently have the capacity to carry as many customers as Suburban Express.

A few years ago, another company called LEX was a major competitor, but they were arguably worse. LEX was forced to shutdown, which left a huge opening for Suburban Express.

Also, the owner probably has a lot of money saved up and can afford to run Suburban Express at a loss for some time.

↓ I was talking about the late game at the point where you can steamroll coalitions. You are in a situation where you can survive a coalition war. On the other hand, a small nation is incapable for surviving a coalition war without allies.

I agree that wrecking game balance would be an issue. I was thinking of making the cost/province maintenance much more significant so that a larger nation pays a greater portion of their income.

For example, an OPM such as Navarra or Ragusa would pay a minuscule maintenance fee that is less than 1% of their income, but a large nation such as a late game AI France would have to pay around 100-500 ducats per month.

↓ AE in EU4 is annoying and does not effectively restrict expansion once you get powerful enough.

AE should be scrapped and replaced with a system like Civ IV that makes you pay a maintenance fee for each province depending on the number of provinces you own.

How to talk to professors? Failing online classes difficult situation by nervvevo77 in UIUC

[-] GuluOne 1 point 21 days ago

A 55% in a class does not mean you will fail. Keep in mind that classes are often curved, and you still have a chance to improve your grades for the final exam or any remaining assignments. The worst thing that can happen is losing your scholarship.

Here is my advice.

- Email all of your professors asking for advice on how to do better for the rest of the semester.
- Clearly explain your anxiety issues to your professors. They should be willing to work with you to improve your grades and make up work.
- Find someone fun to do on a regular basis outside your house that requires interacting with other people. This is a great way to relax and distract yourself from your anxiety issues. It will also help your mood improve significantly, which will help you concentrate when working.
- When you are working at your computer, find a way to minimize distractions such as aimless Internet browsing and games.
- Consider withdrawing from the classes if you cannot salvage your grades. Students are often

Early game, I was focused on farming Imperial Authority, and I wanted to be careful of helping France blob. By the time I realized Burgundy was getting too large, it was too late. France was crippled, England was my rival, and Castille was their ally.

Now that I got the second to last reform, I'm using my HRE vassal horde to deal with them.

CS 498 DL1\(Algo and model of comp\) vs CS 473 \(undergrad algo\) by manish-xenon in UIUC

↑ [-] GuluOne 1 point 1 month ago

↓ Here is a post by /u/jeffgerickson, who is currently teaching CS 498.

Hey there, I'm the instructor. Sorry we haven't put more information out; I've been busy building 374. CS 498DL is the pilot version of the revised CS 473. (The current version of CS 473 has its last offering next semester, after which the new version will be known as... Drum roll... CS 473.) At least in the short term, this class will also take over from 573 as the standard graduate algorithms course.

So there will be a lot of topical overlap with the current 473. We won't spend as much time on basic graph algorithms or basic dynamic programming, since those are already covered in 374, but we will cover some randomized algorithms, a bit of advanced data structures, flows and cuts and linear programming, and approximation algorithms. I'm hoping to squeeze in some streaming/"big data" algorithms as well.

Getting emails about job/internship/training offers. How do I know they are authentic? by FlameDra in cscareerquestions

↑ [-] GuluOne 3 points 1 month ago

↓ Unless they directly give the employer name, they are probably spamming. Most of them are third party recruiters without any understanding of the job.

Also, many of the jobs are temporary with low pay. Here is an email I got.

My name is xXxX xxxxx and I work at Elucid Solutions, Inc. Elucid is an IT company based in Bethesda, Maryland. I found your resume on Monster.com and would like to discuss with you about your background and the work that we do here at Elucid.

Elucid Solutions Inc. is an Information Technology Modernization company aimed at providing support to mid-sized organizations with our core focuses in market research, COTS implementation management, custom software development, and video training.

Over the past months, we have had increasing success signing on additional clients and as a result of this expansion; we are looking for an entry-level website designer/developer to provide add-on support to our service delivery teams. The position pays an hourly rate of $20 per hour.

This position is temporary for the first 3 months, and after the trial period, the temporary staff will be evaluated for full-time employment. The primary purpose of utilizing the temp-to-FTE arrangement is for selecting among the "best and brightest" with the right attitude, aptitude, and work ethic for the trade. Additionally, the successful candidate must demonstrate his or her desire of wanting to be a part of a small dynamic company.

Below is an exhaustive list of core service needs in support of our client projects. As a small company, you will have the opportunity to be exposed to a variety of IT projects. While we realize successful candidates may not have all of the desired experience and skills, they must display an aptitude and eagerness to learn new disciplines and assume new responsibilities.

The main responsibilities of this position will be:

Website Development

- § Perform routine hosting and monitoring activities for customers' websites
  - § Check for broken links, content accuracy and make necessary corrections
  - § Ensure websites meet accessibility requirements
  - § Exercise good customer service skill while interacting with customers
  - § Design new web pages conforming to customer's specifications, using modern design principles and usability best practices
  - § Design graphic assets using Adobe Photoshop and Illustrator tools
  - § Contribute to crafting technical proposals in response to customers' Request for Proposals (RFPs) and Request for Information (RFIs) as they relate to our company's IT solutions
- E-Learning Course Development and Video Editing

- § Develop e-Learning SCORM courses in support of client requirements
  - § Capture system processes for e-Learning videos with Captivate, clean up the files and present the most digestible version of events
  - § Incorporate voice over instructions into the system videos to synchronize with the events on screen in Premiere
  - § Replace old audio with new audio, replace outdated Captivate elements, and resynchronize the events in the videos
  - § Use Adobe After Effects templates to create lower-thirds and other graphics for the videos
  - § Photoshop various screenshots to create assets for the training videos
  - § Output videos and clean audio to create even experiences for viewers
  - § Output and mux videos to create the best possible file size and quality
  - § Use captioning program to create closed captions for the video library
- Experience and knowledge of the following technologies:

- § HTML5, CSS3, and JavaScript
  - § Adobe Creative Suite (Photoshop/Illustrator)
  - § Experience with frameworks such as Bootstrap, Compass, JQuery, and AngularJS is a plus
- The successful candidate must be a creative thinker, a detail oriented multitasker, and able to translate complex ideas into elegant, intuitive designs. As we specialize in IT Modernization, a strong understanding of technology is required to deliver informed services and deliverables. Exceptional verbal and written communication skills are a must have requirement.

If you are qualified and interested in this position please email your cover letter, resume, 3 samples of your past web work, as well as two references.

↓ A rideshare wiki on /r/uiuc is a great idea and it should be heavily promoted. Here are my suggestions.

-You might want to create separate pages for people who need a ride and people offering a ride, especially if the page becomes more popular.

-The instructions for adding a row to the table should be more intuitive for people who don't regularly use Reddit.

↑ [-] GuluOne 2 points 1 month ago*

↓ He is a corporate tool pretending to be a liberal so he can seem like he is helping the poor and middle class.

After the financial crisis, he starting talking about how he was going to reform Wall Street and banks to protect consumers. Nothing significant has changed in the past 6 years, which shows that his words are empty rhetoric. However, he has received significant donations from Wall Street for a long time.

Recently, he came up with a plan to protect Net Neutrality. I find this questionable since he knowingly appointed an anti-Net Neutrality cable lobbyist.

I voted for a third-party candidate in 2012.

I didn't like the show initially

However, I started enjoying the show more since I have a full-time job and can relate to parts of it.

Judging from the parent comment, /u/moreflapjimsjackjim is probably Dennis.

He also sent me the following PM: "So what I think is that you and AlmostGrad100 like your monopoly on Dennis hate and when someone else who has been screwed by this guy speaks up you get all jealous and you gotta muscle the new guy out of the way because it is YOUR thing. Anyone else not hearing back from Engineering career fair companies at all? by Jawanga in UIUC

[-] GuluOne 16 points 2 months ago

Sadly, it is a standard practice for companies to ignore candidates they don't want to hire, even after they started the interview process. Many companies I talked to at career fairs suddenly stopped talking to me without a rejection notice, and the problem was worse when I applied online for jobs this summer.

Usually they have issues with too many applicants, or they have rejected the candidate and don't want to say anything.

People created legitimate new accounts to talk about SubEx, and we would be restricting them by blocking new accounts from talking about SubEx. Here are several examples.

The police can subpoena Reddit and get the IP addresses of the person who made the deleted posts. The police already have Toeppen's IP address from last July's arrest, so linking the posts to him isn't difficult.

Quality of this subreddit has gone down by Whatisqueef in UIUC

↑ [-] GuluOne 8 points 2 months ago

↓ I have also noticed an issue with low quality posts.

-Subreddits often decline in quality as they grow, and this subreddit has rapidly grown in the past few years.

-There has been a significant increase in trolling. The downvote button needs to be brought back to help deal with this.

Also, people have been giving trolls too much attention. I used to have a habit of getting into heated arguments with a Suburban Express troll, which just encouraged him to post more.

-Too many posts about certain topics such as CS classes and Suburban Express have pushed away many people. Part of this was my fault, as I was one of the people who constantly posted about SubEx.

▼ In addition to the cost, I ran into several other problems with my meal plan.

-The A la carte places where Cafe credits could be spent were overpriced and had low quality food that wasn't good for meals.

-The dining halls had limited hours. There was no option for me to eat a late breakfast or lunch if I overslept.

-The meal plans typically give enough for about 12 to 16 meals per week, which is a problem if you have 3 meals per day.

-The quality of the food in the dining halls is terrible.

↑ [-] GuluOne 5 points 2 months ago*

↓ The downvote button should stay. There are plenty of bad questions and troll posts on this subreddit that should not be on the front page.

Also, I suspect that there is a troll or group of trolls actively working to disrupt this subreddit by doing things such as mass downvoting. The low quality posts and downvotes were not a significant problem before last year.

Finally, we should ban persistent trolls such as /u/riboflavins who are contributing to the problem.

If you don't like the posts, just downvote them and move on.

People who are new to campus should not be expected to know the answer to "obvious" questions such as the one you posted.

Good move, there were many unhappy students at TJ that went there unwillingly.

As a student from 2006 to 2010, I also noticed a trend towards emphasizing academics, and the trend seems to be continuing with some of the current policies.

↓ TJ gave me a great education, and it deserves a spot as one of the top schools in the US. However, I'm not sure if it can be considered the #1 school in the US.

↓ Agreed,

When I was a student, people took the rankings too seriously and would constantly brag about it. While TJ is one of the best schools in the country, there is no clear evidence that it is the #1 school in the county.

I noticed the administration putting significantly more pressure on students and implementing polices designed to improve rankings after US News ranked TJ #1 in 2007.

↓ They do a good job of showing schools that are among the top in the nation, but I don't think they do a good job of coming up with exact rankings.

Also, these rankings are a great way for Newsweek to make money.
