Alternative to Suburban Express by randomthrowi in UIUC

[-] SweetHackinJustice 9 points 13 days ago

Greyhound is usually $20 tops.

Also, the trains can be as low as $14 each way. It just depends how far in advance you book and/or when you ride. If you are a tad flexible, look a few days in advance.

Suburban Express court date to vacate dismissals with prejudice to enable 20+ lawsuits to be reinstated: July 30th 1:30pm Ford County Courthouse by Oh-Yes-He-Did in UIUC

[-] SweetHackinJustice 4 points 14 days ago*

I very strongly disagree. The University actually can. Maybe not direct action in the form of attempting to remove the organization; however, they can notify students of the actions of the company, especially given that many of the students previously targeted were international students. The University greatly depends on the international community's high tuition rates to make up for shortcomings in State and Federal funding.

If word were to get out to the international community (which it already has on sites like Weibo and other forums) about the lack of University involvement to protect these students, it could severely damage the credibility of the University, and in turn, result in a drastic decline in international student enrollment. The University cannot afford to lose international enrollment. Not now. Nor can it afford to lose private donors, many of whom have direct and indirect involvement with the local international community. The last thing the University wants is to have its donors informed that the University failed to act when its students were litigated against in mass.

Furthermore, the University can send an official request to the Attorney General's Consumer Complaint Office recommending they continue to inquire about Suburban Express' overly aggressive, harassing, frivolous, improper, and reckless legal tactics.

↓ I think that is a great and effective idea. You have my support!

The University has ignored this long enough. Apathy is no longer an acceptable option...and the University needs to know the students feel that way.

Dennis of Suburban Express purportedly acting as a "reporter" by SweetHackinJustice in UIUC

↓ True. Which is why I'm disregarding anything by /u/pionEERsquare.

As of now, I think we should focus on the above screenshots with the username /u/InterestedReporter

I gave the username ample opportunity to identify "herself" as a journalist to prove "she" is not Dennis; however, "she" ignored my repeated requests. That only leads me to believe, based on previous history, that the username belongs to Dennis.

Furthermore, I believe there was an agenda for /u/InterestedReporter (who is purportedly Dennis) only PMing myself and lemurthelemur despite other usernames displaying knowledge of this topic.

What publication do you write for (why are you hiding this?) and what is your full name (since this shows on all of your previous publications anyway, right?).

This is standard information to which any reporter would typically be proactive in giving.

Please give this information.

↓ I think its all relative. Compared to the competition which has a history of using profanity, banning, and suing, I think Peoria Charter has far superior customer service. They will at least attempt to correct the error vs. ignore/deny it completely.

If you even attempt to complain to the "other" company, the owner viciously verbally (and legally) attacks you...Not to mention Suburban Express during the school year was only open for 4 hours a week (Tuesday 12:30pm-2:30pm and Wednesday 12:30pm-2:30pm).

Actually, yes. He turned small claims court into a profit center. All of the lawsuits were filed outside of Champaign County (40 miles away from the University in a random county called Ford County) so that the University's Student Legal Services could not represent the students.

Furthermore, most of the students couldn't afford attorneys nor did they have a means of getting to Ford County. In the event that the student being "charged" didn't show, the ruling automatically went in favor of the company.

When press got word of this, all of the lawsuits were "dismissed with prejudice" by Suburban Express' attorney (who is now threatening the /r/UIUC Reddit Moderator) James Longbut Dennis is now attempting to reverse that prejudice dismissal requests claiming they were incorrect.

Sick.

They were...even at the request of Suburban Express' (Reddit threatening) lawyer, James Long. However, when a case is dismissed with prejudice, attorneys have 30 days to file a motion to vacate the dismissal from a dismissal with prejudice to just a plain dismissal.

(SubEx) Suburban Express is advertising that it (still) has a A+ rating from the Central Illinois BBB. If you had recent problems with SE, it might be worth filing a BBB complaint as well. by scootey in UIUC

As of now, I don't have any "insider" information. To the best of my knowledge, she is only aware of the lawsuits. However, I encourage everyone to contact the Attorney General (1-800-243-0618) with their own experiences of harassment from the usernames purportedly used by Dennis.

When /u/JohnBambenek completes his investigation, we could potentially have confirmation that said harassment originated from Dennis Toeppen, at which point, further legal charges of harassment could be filed (if appropriate).

I'm guessing some manipulation by Suburban Express occurred. The company has 2 listings with 2 different phone numbers:

This one is not the "headquarters". Less than 3 weeks ago, it had 8 complaints

<http://www.bbb.org/chicago/business-reviews/bus-lines-ticket-agencies/suburban-express-in-champaign-il-88577929>

This one is the "headquarters". Less than 3 weeks ago it had 7 complaints.

<http://www.bbb.org/central-illinois/business-reviews/bus-lines/suburban-express-in-champaign-il-5001684>

In total, the company had 15 complaints, half of which "magically" disappeared. Seems extremely similar to the 100's of Yelp reviews that keep getting filtered and removed.

Here is the email address for the Central Illinois BBB contact. Please contact her with your own experiences:

↓ These are all scams.

They send a fraudulent cashiers check that your bank WILL CASH with a lean on your account until they can verify the check 3-5 business days later (sometimes this process can even take longer since the routing numbers track to a imaginary bank within an African country). Typically, the scammers then ask for the "excess funds" (in this case, the 10%) back via money wiring before the check bounces back to your bank. Then, after your bank realizes the routing numbers are fraudulent, they pull the entire amount from your personal funds, by which time, you have already wired the "excess" amount back to the scammer.

Furthermore, your bank can and most likely will press legal charges against you for fraud.

Do not reply to these scams...even to say negative things. I have seen them further their agenda and solicit money from other people using the email addresses that respond since they know they are valid.

 [\[-\] SweetHackinJustice](#) 1 point 3 months ago*

 Additionally, if you are $20k in debt, I am assuming you are either a Freshman or Sophomore. If this is the case, there is time to turn things around. You just need to AGGRESSIVELY study. Next year, maybe live alone off campus so you do not become distracted. Develop a relationship with your professors...don't just go through the motions and sit in class. If they see you are engaged and WANTING to learn, they are much more willing to invest in your success.

Lastly, SEEK AN INTERNSHIP NOW! If you don't have the grades, work experience can somewhat compensate for that. Employers are looking for experience. To an employer, previous experience means less training and a better return on their investment. If you can't get hired for an internship, try to volunteer for free. Although you won't get paid, this will signal to an employer that you are a hard worker and wanting to better yourself. Another benefit to volunteering is that you will have stories to tell employers during interviews. When they ask you, "Tell me about a time when.....blah blah" and you have nothing to say, that can severely hurt your chances of getting hired. Volunteering is a great opportunity to build your interviewing story repertoire.

 As an MBA graduate student, who also had an undergraduate degree I was not extraordinarily fond of, I feel I may be qualified to answer this question.

Prior to going back for my MBA, I took a job I did not like...I was comfortable, but unhappy. Then, I looked 10 years down the line and had an "oh shit" moment. I did not want to do what I was doing anymore.

Here is the most important question you can ask yourself. IF you do take some time away from school to focus on you and work, will you have the drive to go back to school and do something you love? This is by far the most important question because as I learned, it is way too easy to get comfortable and be satisfied with familiarity.

I think if you have this drive and promise yourself you will go back to school in the near future, taking time off to maybe volunteer, like at the peace corp, may help. Just don't take off from school and work delivering pizzas for 3 years...most schools won't take you back.

Me going back for my MBA was a second chance...however, deciding to leave a $65,000 a year job was very difficult, probably the hardest decision of my life. While I know this doesn't exactly parallel your specific situation, I would reflect on your current state and ask, is this currently going to get you to where you want to be? If the answer is no, take some time off, do something meaningful, and come back for round two. There is NO shame in realizing you may not be going where you want to right now and trying again later.

I also have a friend who was at school and cold turkey dropped out because he was unhappy. He worked for 2 years, going to a community college part time...starting from scratch. After 2 years, he transferred back to a 4 year college and completed his degree in accounting. He is now successful AND happy. Yes, he wasted $25k and 3 years, but in hindsight, is that really that bad?

Hope this helps and good luck!

It has yet to be seen if Dennis Toeppen will make good on his promise of withdrawing all of the Ford County cases...

I am also EXTREMELY concerned with the bottom 2 points Dennis makes in his "plan of action":

2) Engage individuals in settlement discussions, so that they have yet another opportunity to make good on their deal with us.

3) Re-file cases where we are not able to come to an agreement, giving people an opportunity to change venue to Champaign county by mutual agreement.

In my opinion, all he is saying is, we are going to withdraw the lawsuits until things cool down...then RE-ATTACK! He will just send another threatening letter with a bill, then do this all over again once they don't pay.

This is his way of trying to get everyone to pay without going through the court.

Many of these tickets are not as "fraudulent" as you think.

A student may accidentally give a return ticket instead of the first ticket...the bus driver will take it, even though he/she sees its the return ticket, let the student on the bus, and not say a word. Then, 1 month later, that student will receive an intimidating letter saying the student owes $100 + the cost of the ticket for the ride she boarded + damages. Additionally the letters state that "we usually prevail in small claims court" to further intimidate the student.

Does that seem fair?

I'm not sure I understand what you are saying...

But to clarify, they select a venue outside of Champaign County (Ford County, which is approx. 20 miles north of Champaign) so that the University's Student Legal Services cannot represent the students. The charter for the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign's Student Legal Services states that it can only operate within the bounds of the University ("aka" Champaign County). Therefore, selecting Ford County as the venue of civil litigation is a malicious tactic of Dennis used to prevent any student legal representation.

Oh yes, read the text!

<https://www.peoriacharter.com/tickets/?mrkt=uofi>

- All of our motor coaches are company owned and our drivers are company hired and trained. We do not use 3rd party bus companies to do our jobs.
- We will not refuse our customers service for printing out their tickets the "Wrong Way" or even not having the ticket with you. So long as you booked a ticket online we will allow you to ride.
- Our staff and professional motor coach drivers are laid back and well trained. Please do not hesitate to ask us if you have any questions comments or concerns.

I think a Marketing case study should be written about this entire chain of events:

"How to self-destruct your own business by being an arrogant piece of shit asshole (the Dennis Toeppen story)"

The sub-header could be "Just when you thought it couldn't get any worse"

Wouldn't that be good additional publication on your website, <http://toeppen.com>

↑ [\[-\]](#) SweetHackinJustice 18 points 3 months ago*

↓ My concern now lies with the 80 students being sued by you. Everyone is forgetting these students are being left high and dry with ZERO help and/or representation.

I'm sorry, I appreciate the thought "legal-sex" but that doesn't negate the "fucking faggot" and "bitch" comments you have made to riders as well as "banning" hundreds of students unjustly (you will argue against this I'm sure). Additionally, you have chosen a location unreachable to most students and planned the court dates (because you are SUING them) during breaks when no one is here. Finally, you have sent threatening emails intended to intimidate those who have a complaint.

Now you are doing damage control.

You are full of shit you worthless excuse for a human being.

I look forward to you being forcibly shut down and you personally being charged for illegal business practices by the state of Illinois.

↓ It is your job as a carrier to verify the ticket is valid.

If someone with an invalid ticket boards, that is your fault for not properly monitoring who is entering and exiting your bus AND that creates a safety hazard.

Looks like legal-sex forgot to use a condom.

But don't take it from me...

Additionally, you failed to answer my other question:

Why were the majority of your previous lawsuits during winter break and spring break? Why are the new ones during summer break?

↑ [-] SweetHackinJustice 9 points 3 months ago*

↓ See edit...it was "fucking faggot" and "bitch". Sorry.

As Dennis said, I guess this is all just one big 10 year conspiracy right?

This is now my 6th year here and I have heard and witnessed numerous instances

Dennis also potentially committed assault in a Yelp review for physically shaking a girl to wake her up on a bus.

I also have friends who have been banned and screamed at by Dennis for:

- Back when they had those machines, asking if they accept change
- Back when they had those machines, asking for help because the machine shut off on them
- Emailing for help regarding a ticket
- Calling in asking for help

The list goes on and on.

In my opinion, the guy is a monster and deserves to be locked in a cage. He has been allowed to act this way for so long because no one has challenged him. Now, his time is up.

Oh, and he potentially (via one of his throwaways) posted an obituary of someone's parents on Reddit (the moderator). This is just plain disgusting
