For the record, I'm not saying that the developers or the program aren't good. I just think they'd have better luck with a different name, and I wish them all the best in the world.

Suburban Express creates new route from campus to Ford County Courthouse by dylanova in UIUC

[-] dylanova [S] 45 points 1 month ago*

As an alumnus ('11, MS Journalism) I am so very thankful and proud of the actions of the students and others in this subreddit. Especially Murph.

The owner of Suburban Express, a supposed human being, has been counting on his profits in the mistaken belief that he could continue to bully what he thought was a small, powerless group of students that he could perversely torment online without any consequence to his bottom line or his corporate legal status with the State of Illinois.

But we were never as powerless as he mistakenly assumed. You are all part of a huge Illinois family whose collective power is unfathomable to his now outdated concepts of the Internet as it was 15 years ago. He is incapable of understanding the evolution of something he cybersquatted more than 15 years ago. He was not born a digital native as you all were, but was never able to evolve online or learn from his mistakes.

This is just the beginning. I know you are all focused on graduation right now (this failure of a human being counts on that every year for his own financial benefit), like I was at the exact same time. After the storm, don't forget to pay this forward for all of your fellow students, especially those who stood up to protect the most basic of human rights for the international students you have befriended and all others who who haven't graduated yet - your relationships with others from your graduating class, which includes international students, are the beginning of a global partnership needed to find answers to the coming challenges that we will all face in the future.

AMA Request: Suburban Express Owner by [\[deleted\]](#) in UIUC

↑ [-] dylanova 4 points 1 month ago

↓ The only problem is anything he says should begin like this: "I am so, so, sorry. I've haven't been able to behave as an adult on this forum. While I have been successful in the corporate world by ripping people off and suing them in a venue designed to keep them from representing themselves in a fair hearing, getting legal assistance from the university and allowing customers to present their side of the story in a court of law, or accepting the fact that it's possible the court case would not result in my favor, or accepting that the actions of myself or my employees or circumstances could possibly be less than perfect, I have been cruel to everyone on this forum and taken delight in tormenting what I thought was small, powerless group of students. I have been a failure of a human being on this subreddit and in my business practices. Please forgive me. I understand if you are still mad at me, and I will change my behavior and not my words.

Suburban Express Statement by [\[deleted\]](#) in UIUC

↑ [-] dylanova 3 points 1 month ago

↓ That's just the beginning. You have to change your behavior. You have to do this all while understanding that the people you harmed aren't going to be all smiley the next time your sad ass shows up at the door. If anyone did a screen capture of the post (sorry, I forgot) please post it.

↓ Astonishing. If you are actually the owner, you have acted like a fool for days on end. Then you change your tune, and we're supposed to all collectively say "Aww. He isn't so bad." Winning back people you've harmed, insulted, and abused repeatedly doesn't just happen in one day. You have to work at it, and it takes a long time. That type of behavior is also the MO of people that beat their spouses. "Aw, baby, I'm so sorry. I'm a changed man. Forgive me?" But the beatings continue the next day.

Suburban Express Statement by [\[deleted\]](#) in UIUC

He must be feeling the heat, getting calls from newspaper reporters, contacted by the Attorney General's office, and finally afraid of lost revenue or the the loss and closure of his company. That's the only reason I can think of an older adult who behaved like an immature child in the past (like yesterday) suddenly starts acting differently. That type of behavior is typically classified as manipulation and is also exhibited by those with serious mental health issues or who are amoral.

Remain firm any time someone who has exhibited a myriad of examples of being a failure of a human being starts to talk nice. That's also how psychopaths behave - and after you fall for it, they're still happy to metaphorically stab you in the back, eat your entrails and consume their own feces for dessert - all while talking nice and smiling. It comes from an inability to have empathy for other human beings - they care only for themselves. Ever seen American Psycho?

I would suggest forming an RSO (it's easy) for the protection of student travelers, and using the Alumni Association's (guess what? you're all already members) contact list to ask former alums with similar experiences to contact the Chicago Tribune, the News-Gazette, the Chicago Sun-Times, the Journal of Higher Education and the Chancellor with their stories. You can also ask them to contact Suburban Express directly and express their opinions about the service. All of these activities are easy and don't require much of a time commitment. There are hundreds of thousands of alums who would be on your side. You are part of the Illinois family, a giant entity, not just a small, powerless group of students on Reddit - which is what the poster thought you were when he was amusing himself and taking enjoyment out of tormenting people who just want to pay for a ride from here to there.

I recommend that you contact/email the News-Gazette and the Chicago Tribune, who would both be interested in this story, especially as there are public records (ie. lawsuits) available. You should ask them if they can find out how many total lawsuits have been filed by this guy in the past. You could also contact Lisa Madigan via the State's Attorney General's web site. The more of you who contact the newspapers and offer to be a source, the more likely they are to do a story. It also wouldn't hurt to email the Chancellor.

Please stop giving money to any of the "homeless" on Green Street, and tell your friends not to give them money, too. You're not helping them - they are not homeless and just spend the money on drugs/alcohol and have no problem taking advantage of kind-hearted people. Donate instead to a homeless shelter or food pantries such as the one at Wesley United Methodist Church. They actually feed people who are hungry for something other than a fix.

I just made a parody Twitter account for Suburban Express by suburbexpressparody in UIUC

↓ Sure, the company could sue - anyone who can pay the filing fee can file a lawsuit. But there's no way he could win, and a judge would likely throw it out at first glance. The Twitter account is clearly labeled as a parody. Nobody sued "Mayor Rahm Emmanuel" even though most of his posts were filled with expletives.

↓ The Media Commons at the Undergraduate Library has installed, or is about to install, a completely sound-proof room that used to be used for acoustical research. It can reserved at no charge, if it is installed (last time I was there it wasn't yet, but was to be very soon).
